

Happy Homestay

Hosting an international student can be one of life's most rewarding and live changing experiences and is beneficial in countless ways.

An international student can even provide your own children a glimpse into another culture and broaden their perspectives on life. Welcoming international students to your family home can sometimes be the first time children may be exposed to someone whose first language is not English and who have different cultural etiquette which they can learn from. Hosting an international student can promote an interest in learning a foreign language amongst your children.

Becoming a homestay host is a rewarding experience that gives families and individuals an opportunity to make new friends, share interests and hobbies and to develop lifelong relationships, not to mention a potential holiday destination when your student returns home.
